Understanding the Structure of the AP World History Practice Test

The AP World History exam is designed to evaluate a student's ability to analyze historical evidence and express historical understanding in writing. An AP World History practice test mirrors this structure, enabling students to experience the full scope of the exam under realistic conditions. The test is divided into two main sections: multiple-choice and free-response questions.

Multiple-Choice Section

The multiple-choice portion typically includes 55 questions to be completed in 55 minutes. These questions assess students' knowledge of historical facts, comprehension of primary and secondary sources, and ability to make connections across different periods and regions. Students must analyze maps, charts, texts, and images to answer questions accurately.

Free-Response Section

The free-response section requires students to write historical essays and short answers within a 1 hour and 40 minutes time frame. This section includes three types of questions: a Document-Based Question (DBQ), a Long Essay Question (LEQ), and a Short Answer Question (SAQ). Each demands critical thinking, synthesis of information, and clear, evidence-based writing skills.
